Someone in your community has made this Airspace to encourage us to appreciate our magnificent sky! This is a special place to look up and think about all the important things a healthy sky supports - from food to clean air. After all, our sky is the one natural resource that truly connects us all. And while you are here, why not mark your visit by posting a sky photo or artwork to the SkyDay Project Galleries? (QR code below). When you do, you join the thousands of caring people who want us to protect our sky for the benefit of each other and future generations.
